This course provides tools, methods and processes to support countries in monitoring and reporting on SDG Indicator 6.4.2 “Level of water stress: freshwater withdrawal in percentage of available freshwater resources”.

2.5 hours

Available in English, French and Spanish

You will learn about

- Meaning and importance of the indicator 6.4.2
- Composition of the indicator and its variables
- Indicator’s use for policy development
- Data disaggregation and corresponding data requirements
- Processes of collecting data, computing and reporting
- Mechanisms to ensure quality of the data collection process and its outcome
- Implementation of the monitoring process at national level
Who is the course for?

This course is primarily intended for professionals who play a role in the data collection, analysis and reporting on SDG Indicator 6.4.2, as well as for people with an interest in the process. They include policy-makers, water specialists, statistical officers and environmental specialists from national institutions, NGOs, regional and international organizations, academia/researchers and donor community.

Key partners

This course is part of a series of elearning courses on Sustainable Development Goal (SDG) indicators, developed by the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO) to support countries in the collection, analysis, monitoring and reporting of the SDG Indicators, under the FAO’s custodianship.

How to access the course

1. Go to the e-learning Academy: elearning.fao.org
2. Register and log-in with your user name and password

Registration is fast and easy